Dear Scar,

We are writing to you on behalf of our client, Simba, concerning the death of Mufasa. Simba tells us that you have taken Mufasa's place as king and that you deliberately killed him.

Please understand that if you do not immediately stand down as king and pass the title to its rightful owner, Simba, we will banish you to a different kingdom.

We want an apology from you to Mufasa's family for all the heartache you have brought them.

Yours sincerely

Dear Goldilocks,

Hello! We are writing to say that we forgive you for the slight wreckage you have done to our property. However, we would like you to come and stay (as long as nothing is broken).

As you know, Baby Bear loves his porridge so he hopes you can make him some. Try to make it yourself (the secret ingredient is brown sugar). That is how we make it for him. It is his favourite way to have porridge.

Mummy Bear is very sad about her broken chair because she has had it for a very long time. I have tried to fix it but the mice got hold of my screwdriver and ate half of it. Please can we have one? The shop has them for one pound fifty pence.

I am annoyed about you sleeping on my bed. I had to dig out trillions of stuffed animals in my sheets, pillows and even my clothes. My sheets were also in wierd places, they were in Baby Bear's bed, Mummy Bear's blankets and in my closet (strange).

Baby Bear accepts your invitation to the party and hopes your mum's porridge is there too. He wants to buy five animals: a frog, a snake, a fish, a cat and a dog. Lastly, he wants more jelly (obviously).

We very much forgive you and we will see you soon. Goodbye!

From,
Daddy Bear.

P.S. When is the party?

Dear Insects,

Thank you for helping me discover what I am - I still can't believe that I'm a fairy! I was born in a flower and when I opened my eyes I was alone; I knew nothing at all, thank goodness you were there to help. I finally decided upon a name for myself! Thumbelina! (I am thumb-sized!)

I'll visit soon!

Love From Thumbelina X

Dear Mr Scar,

We are writing on behalf of our client K.R.K Simba. It is K.R.K Simba's wish that you are banished from the pride lands. K.R.K say's you should know you deserve to be murdered but he is not like you, he is not a murderer.

On a separate matter, K.R.K wishes that you do not return to the pride lands to see his new daughter so that you are not tempted to return and commit more crimes like the terrible ones you already committed.

More to the point, you and your hyenas including your family if you get one, have no rights to return to the pride. If you have anything to say to this, then K.R.K will personally come and speak to you in the outlands.

Dear Goldilocks,

We are writing to you on behalf of our clients, Mr. and Mrs. Bear. The Bears have advised us that you broke into their property on Thursday 28th July 2019. They claim that you damaged a chair, ate some of their food and left their upstairs untidy.

As you did this without their permission, you are now required to pay costs to cover the damage and cleaning.

Please send in a cheque for $50 by the end of next week.

Dear Mr Wolf,

Due to the fact that you have been terrorising the residents of Pig Town we have had to bring in the Military. You have attacked Miss Red Riding Hood, a good friend of the three pigs. You have destroyed two houses made with sticks and hay and have murdered an old kind defenceless woman. We have set up an exclusion zone outside your house. If you do not surrender and accept our terms we may fire. Do not call on your wolf pack - it will only cause more slaughter.

Dear Miss Witch,

We are writing to you on behalf of our clients, Master Hansel and Miss Gretel, with reference to holding them captive in your house against their will. We have reason to believe that you constructed your house out of confectionery with the sole purpose of luring children such as my clients into your grasp.

On a separate matter, following statements received from my clients, we understand that your intentions are to unlawfully consume young children having firstly baked then in your stove.

Please accept this letter as formal notification that we will be thoroughly investigating these claims and will revert with our intended course of action once known.

Dear Mrs and Mr Baker

I have been so much fun in the foxes tummy. I've been slipping and sliding all over the place. Sometimes I like to go a bit further down in the foxes tummy. And I have been swimming in muddgy ribena (because the fox has been eating blackcurrants).

You probably thinking how I got in there? So I was running away from you, and then I rode on the foxes back and he told me to go on his nose and did and he flipped me up in the air and ate me whole.

Dear Goldilocks,

We accept your apology and it was very nice of you to apologise. Say thanks to your daddy for asking to fix our chair, but we got a new brown chair with a comfy bottom. It did scare me that a little girl came into our house and ate our porridge and broke our chair. We should have remembered to lock the door but it is still terrible to do that! And if you want our porridge the little trick is to add syrup and a little bit of cinnamon. I am still very upset you came in our house but it is better you apologised.

Dear Jack (my favourite English man)

I know you don't know me yet but I want you to tell you how awesome it is to be in my humongous stone castle sitting on top of the clouds 30000 ft above your cottage. Not many people know how to get to my castle; you need to get hold of some magical beans – they are very rare – which will grow into a very tall beanstalk.

Just to say, I have a hen, which lays golden eggs and its eggs make very nice omelettes. I also have a singing harp which makes beautiful sounds.

If you dare to venture up to my castle watch out for me shouting “Fee Fi Fo Fum”!

Looking forward to smelling your blood soon.

Dear Mrs Overkill,

We are writing to you on behalf of our clients "Bob, Kevin and Stuart". It has come to our attention that you have been behaving in a despicable manor towards these loyal and exquisite minions.

Part of your terrible torturing devices include rolling blades, throwing daggers and an unpleasant stretcher. This behaviour is awfully horrendous and if this continues there will be further consequences!

I am writing to inform you, that I have been appointed to act upon behalf of Master Hansel and Miss Gretel. My clients are suing you for emotional damages caused by locking them in your sweet covered cottage (whilst not allowing them to eat any of the tasty confectionary). Since your nasty act, Master Hansel and Miss Gretel have had a hard time recovering: they are not sleeping and are terrified that if they open the door they will be faced with an evil witch.

Please take careful note, if you do not pay damages of 50 000 wadangles by the 1st July 2020 we will be forced to send in the Witch hunters.

On a separate issue, please be advised that Mr Cadbury and Mrs Galaxy are taking legal action for unpaid sweet bills. If debts are not settled in full at your earliest convenience we will be forced to evict you from your cottage.

It's amazing here at the palace! We had a party last night and the food was delicious, especially the prawns. I hope you are ok and have recovered from pushing the carriage? I have had a lovely time, it's amazing being royal!

It's weird being posh rather than being at my horrible stepmother's house and having to do all the work. I will ask the Prince if you can come, if you like? Did you know that they have a big flower bed at the Palace? I love not having to wash and clean. I still can't believe that the fairy godmother changed me into a beautiful Princess!

Have you done anything fun recently?
